CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY SECRET/CONTROL - U.S. OFFICIALS ONLY

- 6. There were 9,000 prisoners at the camp, 2 the majority of which were employed on agricultural projects. Work quotas were established for various types of labor; severe punishment was meted to those who failed to fill their quotas. The daily food ration was 400 grams of bread and three bowls of soup. In principle, each prisoner was allowed to receive one 5-kilo food package a month; however, few packages were actually received because camp guards withheld packages as favorite punishments. The average prisoner received only three or four packages a year.
- 7. Prisoners could receive visitors three times a year, on 1 January, 1 May, and 9 September, although this privilege was often denied them.
- 8. The island section of the camp was guarded by a cavalry unit which had its headquarters at Pleven; the mainland section was guarded by troops of 2 Engineer Regiment which was stationed in Belene.
- 9. Captain Gershanov, commander of the camp guards, flogged several prisoners to death. These deaths were reported as having taken place when the prisoners were attempting to escape. During the winter of 1950-1951, 30 prisoners died from cold or starvation.

Kufaldzha Camp

- 10. The Kufaldzha camp, 3 in the Dobrudzha region, was headquarters camp for six smaller camps, five of which were for men and one for women. A total of approximately 14,000 prisoners were interned in the camp group.
- 11. The prisoners in the women's camp worked in a rock quarry. The daily work quota was to crush one cubic meter of stone. Slisaveta Popantonova, a former member of the National Assembly, was interned at the camp.
- 12. Because of the isolated location of the camp, food packages seldom arrived, or the food was spoiled by the time of its delivery. The Rabotnichesko Delo and the Otechestvan Front newspapers were the only reading material allowed in the camps. The prisoners were informed that if war breaks out none of them will leave the camps alive.

Comment: Possibly Kufaldzha refers to the village Kofaldcialar on the AMS M506 1:250,000 Map Series. The village is located N4341 E2620. Possibly the camp at Kufaldzha is the same as or a part of, the camp previously described as the Nosharevo camp
